THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION'S TALK WITH THE KNIGHTS OF NO. 49.

Mutual Recognition of Cards Discussedbut Not Acted Upon-The Union About Foundly Divided in Sentiment-Still Keeping a Sharp Look Out in the Interest of Brewery Workmen.

The Central Labor Union occupied most of its session at Clarendon Hall yesterday afternoon in a discussion of the report of a special committee appointed at a former meeting to confer with the Executive Board of District Assembly No. 49 for the purpose of bringing about a mutual recognition of cards,

This was done for the purpose of obtaining the active assistance of No. 49 in behalf of the locked-out brewerymen, the Knights of the locked-out brewerymen, the Knights of that body having maintained a passive attitude in the matter, except in the cases of a few who openly opposed the brewerymen because they deserted No. 49 after that body had brought about their organization and aided them to establish shorter hours of labor and better wages.

The friends on the side of harmony and peace in the two great central labor organizations had endeavored to achieve their aim by this method of card recognition, but leaders in the Central Labor Union who have uniformly opposed the Knights made a persistent effort to defeat the object thus sought by the more conservative men, and the long and aerimonious debate which ensued resulted in an adjournment before a vote could be taken.

LITTLEWOOD'S PLUCKY RACE.

Pravelling All Day Saturday While Suffer ing Excruciating Pain.

To the untutored it seems strange that George Littlewood, the English pedestrian. should have surpassed Champion Jimmie Albert's record from 10 o'clock Saturday morning down to 5 o'clock in the afternoon, being sometimes as much as three miles ahead of sometimes as much as three miles ahead of Albert's record, and still failed to beat the final record of 621 miles at 10 o'clock.

Had they seen the foot which the Sheffield boy showed to the reporters at the Ashland House vesterday they would have marvelled, rather, that he remained on the track so long. The flesh on the fourth and fifth toe of one foot was worn off so that the benes were literally laid bare. At 9 it was only 611.2, and as this was ten miles short of the record, he retired from the contest.

miles short of the record, he retired from the contest.

How anxious he was to win the championship, may be gathered from the fact that early in the day he implored Dan Herty to work alorgside of him and urge his pace, so that he might surpass Albert's score.

He had been handicapped from the start. On Tuesday the oil in his thigh joint was not sufficient, and the joint worked like a rusty hinge, giving him almost agonizing pain. Nothing but indomitable pluck and will power braced him up for a continuance then.

He is fearfully stiff and lame after the race, but he says cheerily that he shall go home on May 29, and will challenge the world for the championsbip and $5,000.

Gus Guerrero was as limber and lively as ever after the race. He danced a jig to show how free from stiffness he was. But for the attack of vertigo last Monday, and his fainting fit on the track Friday night, the Greaser would have been a hot competitor with Littlewood for first place. As it was he covered 590 miles.

The gate receipts for the week aggregated $15.896.50. Littlewood gets $3,374.12. For beating the record he would have receive 1 $1,000 more. Guerrero gets $1,587.65: Herty, $1,192.23; Noremac, $794.82, and Golden, $397.41.

THE SERVIA SAFE IN PORT.

Her Captain Unable to Account for the Rumor that She Had Gone Down.

The Cunard steamship Servia, which, it was rumored, had gone down at sea, was docked at the foot of Charlton street at 9.45 o'clock this morning. Capt, McKay said that the Servia had left Liverpool on Saturday, May 5, and on reaching Queenstown was somewhat delayed by a heavy fog. From that time on, however, the voyage had been a good one until within forty-eight hours of the Hook, when easterly winds and another heavy fog were encountered, which necessitated slowing down.

The passengers all declared that they had a splendid trip. They cannot imagine how a rumor that the vessel had gone down could originate.

The rumor of the vessel's loss and her subsequent arrival led to the assembling of a large number of persons on the pier-head. One lady refused to believe that her sister was safe even when the vessel lay in mid-stream opposite the pier, and when the steamer was swung into the dock and the lady's sister was seen waving her parasol, to the end of which she had fastened her handkerchief,

HIS DEATH A MYSTERY

CORONER LEVY'S INQUEST CONTINUED TO-DAY.

Where Was Mr. Ferris at the Time Hatch Entered the Scoffeld House ?-Mrs. Scofield Called to Court To-Day in a Suit to Recover Money Not Paid for Furniture.

The 800 people who crowded into and around the approaches of City Hall chambers at noon to-day to hear the investigation as to Broker Nathaniel W. f. Hatch's death, looked with especial interest at the stout, gray-haired man with long flowing beard and mustache who came in with Mrs. Scofield.

The man was "Brother-in-Law" David C. Ferris, the rich mining speculator, of 18 Broadway, from whose office Broker Hatch and Mrs. Scofield walked uptown on that fatal Monday a week ago.

Though it is now known that Ferris is per-

Though it is now known that Ferris is perhaps the one man alive most likely to know how Broker Hatch came to be lying dead and mangled in the yard of 64 West Twentieth street, he has until to-day affected an utter ignorance of what happened at Mme. Fanny's and at the house.

He told the police the day after the tragedy that he stayed at Mme. Fanny's only a few minutes and then went home. But Detective Edward A. Clark, of the Coleman House, tells a story which throws a new and startling light on the case.

He says that at about 8.30 on Monday night Ferris came to the hotel in a state of great excitement and told him he wanted a man and woman shadowed. He took the detective to Mme. Fanny's and showed him Mrs. Scofield and Broker Hatch. He told the detective to watch them and not leave them till they parted.

"If they go to 64 West Twentieth street," he said, "that is the woman's home."

Ferris then left the detective, who carried out his instructions and afterwards reported to Ferris.

It is suspected that Ferris, either impelled by jealousy or acting a part in some plot against Hatch, loitered about the house after the couple entered, and that he may have some knowledge about the latter's death.

Coroner Levy determined to sift the matter to the bottom and took the precaution of serving a subpœna on Mr. Ferris early this morning, at his house.

Charles W. Scoffeld, the willingly injured husband in the case, was brought down by Officer McGowan from the House of Detention, where he has resignedly passed the last three days.

Prior to the calling of the Hatch case by Coroner Levy Mrs. Lillian Scofield put in an appearance in the Chambers of the City Court this morning. She had been summoned to appear by Chief Judge McAdam, upon the application of Nathaniel Ellis and Jacob Marks, counsel for B. L. Solomon's Sons, upholsterers, who are creditors of rhe woman. In 1885, in the City Court, the firm obtained a judgment of $271.82 against Mrs. Scofield. Execution issued and was returned unsatisfied. This morning she was to have been examined in supplementary proceedings. She was accompanied by her counsel, Jerome Buck, who urged an adjournment because his client was compelled to attend the inquest. It was granted.

NO USE FOR BAD IMMIGRANTS.

One Kind of People Whom Uncle Sam Can Not so Much as Tolerate.

For the past two or three years the Collector of this port has had occasion now and then to send immigrants back to their native land because they were felons, and of late these occasions have become more frequent, until now it is of almost daily occurrence.

The Martha, a merchant steamship consigned to Funch, Edye & Co., brought over among its steerage passengers four Italians who had served terms of imprisonment for crimes committed in Italy. One of these had attempted murder; another was a bandit, and the others had committed minor offenses. They were returned by Collector Magone on the same ship, as was a garroter on the Alesia. Yesterday the Cachar landed 1,529 emigrants from Naples. Among them were five grants from Naples. Among them were nive ex-convicts, who are now awaiting the action of Collector Magone. They are minor criminals, the most henious crime of either being a murderous assault with a pistol by criminals, the most hemous crime of either being a murderous assault with a pistol by Antonio Garcia.

Garcia is a tall, lynx-eyed fellow of forty years. He eyes callers with a hungry, malicious look. Another has the dull, sleepy eyes of a bulldog. The baggage of each is confined in a dirty bandana handkerchief.

Information of the character of the immigrants generally comes in the shiping list, although now and then the Emigration Commissioners are informed of the coming of a criminal by some of their countrymen already here. Then they are taxed with the crime alleged, and usually they confess.

This was the case of a woman some weeks ago who attempted to poison another woman in Italy, and she was returned.

Collector Magone is determined that America shall not become Italy's penal colony if he can prevent it, and such emigrants will be returned invariably.

gates from each of the 128 Assembly district in the State, or in all 384 delegates.

Up to noon to-day only about one-third of the Democratic leaders, lieutenants and delegates from the rural districts had arrived in this city. A large number of the political pilgrims are expected this afternoon and evening. The rear guard will not arrive until to-morrow morning.

There is every indication that the convention will be a harmonious and thoroughly representative assemblage of the party in the State. No factional feeling has so far shown itself, and there is no evidence that any context will be brought before the convention.

The friends of the National and State of the National Administration will also be interested to the National State of the National Administration will also be incommended, and the convention will be recommended and the convention will not nominate State officers, an expression of views and the convention will not nominate State officers, an expression of views and the convention will not nominate State officers, an expression of views and the convention of David B. THE BREWERS' BIG PARADE

SHOWING THE PUBLIC THAT THE LOCK-OUT STILL CONTINUES.

The Men Form in Line After Meeting at Clarendon Hall, Where They Hear Cheering News from the West-A Delegation to Call Upon Mayor Hewitt To Morrow-Line of March of the Parade.

The parade of the locked-out-brewers took place this forenoon. From an early hour the men began to assemble at Clarendon Hall. where two meetings were held. The meeting of the Journeymen brewers in the large hall upstairs, was presided over by Jacob Huber. The drivers assembled in the committee-room, where Hermann Folcke wielded the gavel. Booth meetidgs were orderly and

At the journeymen's meeting a telegram was read from Cincinnati saying that a number of journeymen and saloonkeepers had purchased a controlling number of shares in ber of journeymen and saloonkeepers had purchased a controlling number of shares in the Banner Brewery, and that the pool was broken in that city. This announcement was received with cheers.

The delegation that was to have waited on the Mayor did not act, as it was announced that the Mayor was not in the city. He will be waited on to-morrow. The object of the delegation is to draw public attention to the fact that the men are still locked out.

It is also intended to try to induce the city government to act as mediators and to interfere in favor of the men, who they claim, as free American citizens, should not be forced to leave their organization, into which they were forced by the bosses two years ago.

It was after 11 o'clock when the meetings broke up and the men formed in line in Thirteenth street. Police Capt. J. H. Mc-Cullagh and thirty-five men of the Fourteenth Precinct were present to see that no one assaulted the journeymen brewers.

A noticeable feature of the parade was the absence of flags and music, two small white banners bearing the legend "The Locked-Out Brewery Workmen" being the only emblems displayed. There were about six hundred men in the line of march, which lay through Fourth avenue to Third to Canal street, to Broadway to the City Hall, where the parade dispersed.

It was asserted that the trouble would assume another and a sensational phase during the coming week, but what the sensation would be could not be ascerta ned.

HENRY W. HOWLAND MISSING. No Trace of Him Seen by His Friends Since

Hepry W. Howland, once well known as a notel proprietor and manager, has been lost to his family since last Saturday evening. He was last seen by his brother-in-law at the latter's store in Park place. At his home, 1495 Broadway, it was to-day learned that Mr. Howland had been suffering with a brain trouble for some months past. The members of his family are exceedingly anxious, but hope for the best.

Relatives living out of town have been summoned to aid in the search which his family and many of his friends are carrying INT CABLE TO THE PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION. LONDON, May 14.—Admiral Hewitt, of the Royal Navy, died at Haslar Hospital last
